VOL. XXXVI.

STANFORD, KY., TUESDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1908.

NO. 78.

KINGSVILLE.

Roscoe Gooch is cooking for Ferguson's bridge crew at McKinney.

Harvey Acton, of Waynesburg, spent Thanksgiving with his brother, Dr. Acton.

Cyrus Johnson came down from Highland to take part in the debate on Friday night.

School closed here yesterday so the teachers could attend the educational rally at Stanford.

M. G. Murphy has finished his work on the turnpike between this place and the Casey county line near Duncan.

L. M. Walls has opened a stock of goods at his new store on the Stanford pike. He desires a part of the public patronage. Give him a trial.

Will Alford, of Lexington, spent several days with relatives here. He put in good time while here, hunting during the day and courting at night.

John Lee is working with the bridge crew at McKinney. He says the coal shutes for this place are a certainty and that work will begin on them in the next six weeks.

Our merchants regret very much to hear of the death of Bob Adams, salesman for Bryan, Day & Hunt. He was a splendid drummer and was greatly liked by our merchants.

A large crowd attended the spelling match and pie supper Friday night. Miss Lizzie Dye proved to be the champion speller and Miss Birdie Brown got the prize for the prettiest girl.

Claude Hester is building a concrete pavement in front of his residence. Let the good work go on until we have sidewalks that a person can walk over without being in danger of breaking a leg.

There is a tract of land of 100 acres near here for sale. The owner lives in Cincinnati and desires to dispose of his property at a very reasonable price. For full particulars call at the Smith Hotel.

Charlie Vest has shipped his household effects from here to Indiana, where he will reside. Sam Flint and family are back from Texas. They removed from here to the Lone Star State some 15 months ago, but have been dissatisfied. Mr. and Mrs. Flint are deaf and dumb and that accounts probably for their dissatisfaction among strangers.

The three weeks' revival at the Methodist church came to a close last Wednesday night with special services for Thanksgiving. There were 23 additions to the church during the meeting. The sum of $10 was realized in the Thanksgiving offering for home missions and church extension. Eld. J. G. Livingston filled his appointment at the Christian church on the fourth Sunday. He baptized four converts at the Fishing Creek lake Monday.

Mr. R. P. Austin, of Washington City, stopped over a short time while passing through to Casey on a business trip. He is an employe in the U. S. department of pensions. Although he has been employed under a republican administration for the last 12 years, he is still an ardent democrat and has never lost his position. He expressed an opinion while here that the next National democratic platform would embrace the prohibition plank.

Thursday was observed as a holiday by the graded school and all our merchants except one. Judging from the number of persons who seemed rather "tight," there must have been some Thanksgiving liquor on hand. Much of the "fire water" used here is shipped in from Chattanooga. I move that we instruct our Representative in Congress to introduce a bill to prevent the importation of liquor into local option territory. Do I hear a second?

Miss Ella Leach, of Stanford, visited Mrs. Claude Hester. Willie Leach is working as operator and agent at Sales Creek, Tenn. The point is just a few miles north of Chattanooga. Will is young in the business and we wish him every success that can come his way. "Uncle" Josh Swope, of Hustonville, brought his best girl over Sunday to sample the excellent fare at the Smith Hotel. He told a number of his friends here that he would make the race for the nomination for circuit clerk.

James Barton, while out coon hunting Friday night, killed one of the largest black eagles ever seen here. The eagle was found perched on a log near Fishing Creek. It first attacked Jim's coon dog and made him burn the wind. The eagle made for the light which Barton was carrying, with outstretched wings. Barton was alone and he says he thought at first that it was a bear making for him. In his excitement he hurriedly fired his gun and struck the eagle in the head. He was so frightened that it was several minutes before he was able to examine his adversary. This broke up the coon hunting for that night. Saturday morning he brought the big bird to Walter's store for exhibition. It measured seven feet from tip to tip and is a fine specimen of its kind.

MATRIMONIAL.

A large boy was seen wearing four heavy undershirts on one of the warmest days last week. Wonder what he will do when it turns cold sure enough?

William Thomas Naylor and Miss Annie Singleton were made one at Rev. Pointer's on the 28th.

James W. Hornbeck, of New York, and Miss Lala Jones, of Monticello, were married last week.

Mrs. Julia Hughes announces the engagement of her niece, Miss Stella Rosamond McClary, to Mr. William Archer Yeager, of Middlesboro. The wedding will occur the last of December.

Col. and Mrs. William B. Haldeman announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Clara Bruce Haldeman, to Mr. J. Frazier Bonnie. The wedding will be solemnized on Wednesday, January 6.—Louisville Times.

At Somerset quite a surprise was sprung in social circles by the announcement of the engagement and forthcoming marriage of Miss Josephine Roberts, daughter of Mr. James Roberts, a well known stock dealer, to Mr. Marcus E. Burke, of Baltimore, Md. Miss Roberts bears the distinction of being one of the most beautiful and popular young ladies in Kentucky and is a universal favorite here. The bridegroom-to-be is a well known traveling man. The wedding will occur in the early part of December.—Somerset Journal.

The marriage of Albert R. Wallace, of this place, and Miss Mary Ethelton Clarke, of Springfield, was solemnized at the home of the bride's guardian, Mr. J. W. Jarboe, at Springfield, at 9 o'clock Thanksgiving morning. Rev. W. C. Williams performed the ceremony. The wedding was a home affair and only a few intimate friends were present. The pretty home was beautifully decorated for the occasion. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Wallace drove to Lebanon and took the train for this place, where they arrived at 12:30. They went direct to the home of Mr. Wallace on Danville Avenue where they are now domiciled. The bride is a handsome young woman, of good family connection and we are told has an abundance of means. The groom is the well-known liveryman and a splendid young man in every way.

Cupid Busy In Louisville.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 28.—Cupid was unusually active in Louisville during Thanksgiving week and many hearts were pierced with his keen darts. Some of the ceremonies were solemnized at the homes of the contracting parties; others chose to lead their brides to the hymenial altar of some fashionable church, while not a few crossed over the river to the Hoosier Grctna Green—Jeffersonville.

Two weddings out of the long list will be of interest to the many friends and relatives of the contracting parties in Lincoln and Casey counties. Miss Elizabeth McAlister Portman, who formerly lived with her parents at Stanford, but who has resided in Louisville for several years, was married to Mr. C. L. Anderson, of Chicago. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents at 110 West Chestnut, Rev. L. C. Kelly officiating. The groom, who formerly lived in Nashville, holds a lucrative position in the Registry Division of the Chicago post-office. The bride and groom left at once for Chicago, where they will make their future home.

On Thanksgiving day Jason C. Lawhorn and Miss Fannie L. Cochran were united in the holy bonds of wedlock at the home of the bride's parents in Parkland. The bride is a native of Casey county and is a daughter of W. B. Cochran, at one time a leading attorney of Casey, former editor of the Liberty News, but now a U. S. storekeeper and gauger of the Fifth district. The groom, who has just reached his majority, is the only son of Mrs. Belle Lawhorn, of Yosemite, and is a prominent merchant and business man of that hustling burg. The young couple will visit Mammoth Cave and other points of interest during their honeymoon. They will live at Yosemite.
